

Carson Students Prove They Know Wall Street

If results in a hypothetical investment problem are an indication of things to come in the "real world," students from Carson High School will do well on Wall Street.

In two months, they increased their hypothetical portfolio from $100,000 to $114,808.50.

They ranked first in the Harbor area and eighth in a city-wide "Invest in the Future" competition sponsored by the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce.

THE CARSON High Stock Market Club includes students Charles Beck, Satch Esperanillo, Joe Fuller, Joel Kellick, Jerry Leong, Sue MacLean, James Loui, Salvador Mendez, Thom Mullins, and Al Pardo Jr. Mrs. Beulah Hlastala and Robert Knutson are faculty advisors.

Purpose of the contest was to familiarize high school students with the tools and concepts used by the business community for investing in the stock market.

Barton F. Wigge, supervisor of business education for the Los Angeles City School District, served as coordinator for the school district, and the Jaycees were represented by George Dillon, Walter Baca, and William Bryant.

SCHOOLS were ranked on the basis of their management of a financial portfolio, and results of a test taken by students.

Each of the 16 participating schools was limited to one group of 10 students. Starting with the fictitious $100,000, students were encouraged to invest in accordance with fundamental investing principles.

Each team was assigned a broker-advisor member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce who could counsel, but not make decisions.

BUYING and selling was allowed during official market hours, using only those stocks and bonds listed with the New York, American, and Pacific Coast Stock Exchanges. No limitation on the number of transactions per day was imposed. However, there was a prohibition against dealing in new issues, commodities, short sales, and buying on margin. Dividends were not considered. As part of their orientation, representatives from each participating school visited the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange and a major brokerage firm. Westchester High School finished first in the contest.

Telephone Program Offered

No one would deny that the telephone plays a vital role in our everyday lives. Yet, millions of us don't get the best service we could from the telephone, simply because we misuse it.

The telephone is a delicate instrument that reflects a speaker's entire personality. Whether a smile or a frown is portrayed, it is conveyed the tone of voice. Always remember, the other party cannot see you, he can only hear the tone of your voice.

In addition to how you speak, how you listen is important, too. Let the other person complete his thoughts before responding. "Many bad habits can easily be corrected by adopting a few simple tips on telephone etiquette," says Ruby Miller, public relations representative for General Telephone Co.

Mrs. Miller is one of four speakers who present a lecture demonstration titled "See Yourself As Others Hear You" to interested schools, law enforcement groups, and other organizations. These programs are available on a free-loan basis by contacting your local General Telephone business office or by calling the speaker's bureau collect in Santa Monica.

Mrs. Miller says that immediately identifying yourself is a time saving trait worth developing. Many moments can be saved when parties state who they are and why they are calling.

Other tips include letting the dial spin back freely. Forcing the return dial can lead to an incorrect number or other troubles, since the dials on your telephone are set to return at a definite speed. Changing that speed can only lead to problems.
